

PAWNS TIMEPIECE, THEN TELLS POLICE OF BOLD HOLD-UP

Wanted Money, But Feared
Telling Mother How
He Got It.

From the deathlike silence that overhangs the marshes of the Eastern branch of the Potomac just before dawn there came early today shrieks of "Help!" "Murder!" "Police!" Ordinarily, such cries would have been carried away by the breeze unheard, but it happened this morning that the wind was not blowing. It also happened that just at the psychological moment George Washington and Sam Butler were walking along the Benning road on their way home.

The two men stopped and listened. There was no mistaking what they had heard. The screams were coming from beneath the culvert near the colored school house. Washington and Butler started to make an investigation. They walked to the edge of the embankment, where they could hear some one groaning. They made their way down the embankment and under the culvert they found Lorin Buck, eighteen years old, of Capital Heights, Md., lying on the ground, bound hand and foot. They took off the bandages which held his arms and hands, and then notified the police of the Ninth precinct.

A remarkable story of how he had been held up, assaulted, and robbed of a silver watch was told by Buck. The police sent him to the Casualty Hospital, where the physicians failed to find any signs of the young man having been roughly handled. Then the police decided to investigate his story.

From the hospital Buck was taken to the station-house and questioned. He failed to remember any of the details of the hold-up, except that he had been attacked on his way home.

VICTIMS OF POISONED CANDY RECOVERING

Stewart V. Prince, Wife, and Daughter Show Improvement At Hospital.

Stewart V. Prince, a typewriter dealer living at 222 Second street northeast, his wife, Mrs. Mamie B. Prince, and their seven-year-old daughter, Thelma, who were poisoned, it is believed, by eating candy purchased at a store in Maryland, had recovered to such an extent this morning that physicians at Georgetown University Hospital said they would leave the institution during the day.

The trio were suddenly taken ill while on their way home in an automobile last evening. Mr. Prince, who was driving the machine, was stricken first and by the time he had driven the car to the hospital his wife and daughter had both become ill. It was found they were suffering from what appeared to be ptomaine poisoning, but their condition was not serious.

Charles M. Woolf Wills Life Income to Wife

After leaving $500 to the Epworth M. E. Church South, the will of Charles M. Woolf, dated October 20, 1911, provides that the estate shall be held in trust by the Washington Loan and Trust Company and that his wife, Mary E. Woolf, shall have the net income during her life. On the death of Mrs. Woolf, the will provides, the estate shall be divided among the brothers and sisters of the testator, John A. Woolf, James E. Woolf, E. L. Woolf, Robert D. Woolf, W. H. Woolf, Mrs. Beattie Waters, and Agnes Woolf.

Under the terms of the will of Horace C. Deland, which is modified by a codicil, the bulk of his $50,000 estate will be divided among his three unmarried sisters, Annie E. Deland, Laura C. Deland, and Ellen D. Deland. J. Randall Williams and Mary K. Williams are named as executors.

New Dancing Styles Are Seen at Chevy Chase Lake

Just how many new variations of the "Boston" and other learned dances, Washingtonians have learned during their visits to the watering places of the North and abroad, can be seen nightly, even during the present warm spell at Chevy Chase Lake.

Acknowledged by the dancing element as an ideal place, to which is also coupled ideal dance music, the pavilion at the lake is the destination of every young person who returns to the city from vacation places with knowledge of this or that new mode of dancing. Throughout the season the management has strictly enforced the rule against the dancing of "freak" steps, such as the "Turkey Trot," the "Bunny Hug," and other similar gyrations. In consequence of the precaution the lake is patronized by a refined class of people and steadily grows in its popularity.

Mount Bethel Baptist Association to Meet

The Mt. Bethel Baptist Association will hold a three-day session in Washington next week, beginning Tuesday. Several thousand leading colored Baptist church workers are expected to be present. All of the meetings will be held in the Cosmopolitan Baptist Church.

NEED FOR GREATER CONSERVATION TO BE SHOWN IN LECTURE

Edward P. Cowell, of Franklin Institute, Will Explain Facts.

A trenchant treatment of the pressing need for greater conservation of our natural forests will be contained in a lecture to be given by Edward P. Cowell, of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, at the Pastime Theater, 477 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The history of the movement, from its origin under the Pinchot administration of the Forest Service to the present day, will be given. Mr. Cowell will show what influence President Roosevelt exerted toward the conservation campaign and what a great power he was in extending the movement. This will be the central feature of his address, to be re-enforced with the argument that the re-election of Colonel Roosevelt if conservation policies are to be developed to their highest effectiveness.

Mr. Cowell will clearly describe, with an abundance of moving pictures and slides, the evolution of a tree into wood pulp, which goes into the making of a modern daily newspaper. This process, involving the cutting down of thousands of trees in the vast forests of the United States and Canada, will be shown in detail, especially the elements of the manufacture in the paper mills. The transportation of thousands of tons of paper from the mills to various great newspaper offices will be shown.

Owing to the fact that Colonel Roosevelt is the foremost champion of conservation policies in the United States, Mr. Cowell intends to project his candidacy before the meeting in vigorous fashion. The public is invited to attend.

Hitchcock in Favor Of Lewis Modification

Postmaster General Hitchcock is in favor of the Lewis modification of the Bourne parcels post bill, which raises the weight limit on parcels to fifteen pounds, widens the classification of eligible matter, provides for the sending of packages C. O. D., and gives the Postmaster General power to change the regulations governing the system "as the public good demands."

An official announcement to this effect was made following a conference between Congressman Lewis, the Postmaster General, and Assistant Postmaster General Grandfield, Stewart, Britt, and DeGraw.

Cavalry Band Helps Success of Lawn Fete

With the Fifteenth Cavalry Band as a special drawing card, the lawn fete for the benefit of St. Charles Church, of Clarendon, Va., last night was a big success. More than five hundred persons attended, and all the ice cream, cake and candies for sale were sold.

Senate Not Friendly To One Term Resolution

Indications are the Senate will turn down the Works resolution providing that the President shall be limited to a single six-year term. It is not certain a vote will be had on the resolution this session. In any event, its adoption is said to be unlikely.

Senator Borah of Idaho spoke against the resolution yesterday afternoon at length. He declared the present four-year term was satisfactory. He said he would be when the question of terms of office had ceased to be considered.

COLORED MAN HELD ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Anacostia Police Accuse Prisoner of Having Taken Animal From District Livery Without Permission—Alleged Highwayman Identified.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, ANACOSTIA, D. C., AUG. 21.

A colored man who was lashing a horse attached to an old wagon, while crossing the Anacostia bridge, last evening, was stopped by citizens, who brought about his arrest. When he was cornered and forced to leave his conveyance at Nichols avenue and Good Hope road, a hundred people gathered. Thomas F. Murray, who was crossing the bridge in his automobile, saw the colored man punishing the horse. He called to the man to stop, but, instead, the man rained blows on the horse, which was exhausted. Mr. Murray and others managed to follow the fellow and get word to the police.

Finally, after being surrounded, he was locked up by Policeman C. R. Brown. He gave his name as Richard Butler. It was found that he had taken the horse and wagon without the consent of Liveryman Schlegel, of Washington, to whom they belong. Two charges were placed against him. A companion who started with him was locked up in the Sixth precinct station, charged with disorderly conduct.

Held up and robbed in broad daylight, while a potato sack was thrown over her head to stifle her cries, as she was passing along a lonely lane in the direction of Oxon run, beyond Congress Heights, Georgianna Jackson, an aged colored woman, was overpowered by a colored man, who secured her pocket-book and $12. After knocking her down and taking the money, the man fled into the woods.

The woman threw the bag from her head quickly, although somewhat hurt, and she caught a glimpse of the robber as he ran. She identified a man locked up by the Anacostia police, last night, as the highwayman, but relatives of the prisoner declared he was at home all day. He said his name was Leroy Moore, better known as Leroy Simms, a resident of the colored community beyond Anacostia.

The celebration of Labor Day this year in this section will be more general than ever before. Already three big events have been planned to furnish entertainment for the holiday crowds. The latest one to be announced is a racing program at the Forestville, Prince George's county, Md., driving park. Dr. John E. Sanbury, of Forestville, has arranged a program of

WELCOMES ARREST WHEN FEET TIRE

Self-Confessed "Moonshiner"
Wants To Ride Back To Georgia.

"I didn't walk to Washington, and I'm not going to walk back home, but I'm going to let the Government pay the fare back," said Arnold A. Baylock, a self-confessed "moonshiner," who surrendered himself to the Washington police, when seen in his cell at the First precinct station this morning.

Arriving in Washington last Friday, Baylock spent several days seeing the sights of the National Capitol, and last evening walked into police headquarters and announced he was a fugitive from justice and wanted to give himself up. According to the prisoner's story, he had been making "moonshine" whiskey at his home, near Gainesville, White county, Ga., and the revenue officers were on his trail.

About two weeks ago, he said, the revenue officers raided his still, but he escaped. After tramping cross country and spending several nights in the mountains, he came to a railroad station, where he boarded a train for Washington.

Without funds and tired of being a fugitive, he told the police, he decided to surrender himself. The police are holding the man pending instructions from the Government authorities.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, ANACOSTIA, D. C., AUG. 21.

There will be three harness races, a three-minute trot for a purse of $50, a special colt race for two-year-olds, purse, $50; a free-for-all event, purse, $50.

The motorcycle races include a race against a running horse, a professional race with stripped machines, and an amateur race with stock machines. In addition to the Forestville races Labor Day here will be celebrated by a large gathering of Germans and their friends at an outdoor festival on the grounds of the German Orphan Asylum, while at Oxon Hill, Prince George's county, Md., a tournament will be given on "The End of the Rainbow" for the benefit of St. Ignatius' Church, a mission of St. Teresa's parish at Anacostia.

With the shooting season eleven days off, marsh birds are beginning to arrive at their feeding grounds in the Anacostia river.

The season for the gunners opens in September, and so far only one complaint has been registered with the police concerning premature hunting of marsh birds.

The Rev. Samuel W. Grafflin, pastor of the Anacostia M. E. Church, today left for Union Grove, Pa., where he will preach tonight at the Methodist camp meeting.

The new Catholic Sunday school at Congress Heights will be the beneficiary of a six-room cottage in the Bailey estate, which will be built in the place of the old one. Many booths have been erected and dancing will be a feature.

A. E. McKay, a Washington contractor, has purchased from Matthew Bailey a six-room cottage in Brothers place, Congress Heights, which has been occupied by Mr. Bailey and family. Mr. McKay has sold to Mr. Bailey two lots in Fifth street, Congress Heights, where the owner put up a handsome bungalow.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Langley have returned to their home in Congress Heights after a stay in Piney Point.

Patrick Barrett, of St. Elizabeth's, who has been spending his vacation at Piney Point, has returned.

Dr. Gonzalo R. La For, of St. Elizabeth's, has returned after a visit to Atlantic City, Boston, and other cities.

MARTIN LUTHER IS SUBJECT OF PASTOR AT CAMP MEETING

Interesting Services Are Planned for Every Day on Great Falls Program.

Two lectures were delivered today at the Great Falls Methodist Episcopal South camp meeting.

At the morning watch at 7 o'clock there were about 300 persons. The Rev. J. R. Jacobs conducted this service.

The first lecture was at 9 o'clock and the speaker was the Rev. J. W. Smith, who spoke on "Martin Luther, the Hero of the Reformation."

The Rev. Dr. J. A. Rice, of Fort Worth, Tex., delivered the second lecture of the day. He spoke on "Jeremiah, Is a Man Bigger Than Anything That Can Happen to Him?"

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Rev. C. M. Bishop, D. D., president of the Southwestern University, of Georgetown, Tex., will lecture on "The Attitude of Jesus Toward the Universe."

The last services of the Biblical Institute will be on Friday, Saturday will be rest day, the only services being held at night at 8 o'clock.

Sunday the "old-time" camp meeting will begin and last until Labor Day. There will be a sermon each morning at 11 o'clock every afternoon at 3, and one at 8 o'clock each night. Great crowds from Washington and the surrounding country are expected to attend the camp meeting proper.

MRS. BARBER'S GEMS WORTH A FORTUNE

Inventory of Dead Woman's Estate Shows Rare Jewels and Relics.

The estate of the late Mrs. Julia Louisa Langdon Barber, who died on a train near Baltimore, some months ago, contained many rare jewels and relics, according to the appraisement of her personal property, filed yesterday with the Register of Wills. Rugs, however, which were considered almost priceless are found to be worth less than $5 upon expert inventory.

Her personal estate is worth $101,223.30, divided as follows: Household goods, $1,748; jewelry, $21,997.50; stocks, $17,600; bonds, $16,400.30; silverware, $1,477.50; and automobile, $3,000.

Included in the jewelry are a long gold chain, set with 160 diamonds, and valued at $5,000; one brooch, with pearl in the center, surrounded by three rows of diamonds, and carrying a pearl pendant, studded with diamonds, $3,000; one ring, set with a large pearl and two diamonds, $2,000; and two large solitaire diamond stick pins, $1,000.

TWENTY-EIGHT TON MARBLE COLUMNS FOR NEW TEMPLE

Huge Stones to Be Used in Scottish Rite
Structure.

Not since the huge stone columns were put in at the Treasury Department three years ago, has as large quantity of solid marble been brought to Washington as that used in the construction of the Scottish Rite temple, Sixteenth and 8 streets northwest.

Twenty-three columns, each weighing 26,000 pounds, have been hauled from the Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight yards, New York and Florida avenues, to Sixteenth and 8 streets. It required twenty-eight horses to pull the big pieces of marble.

In Q street there are a number of deep tracks made by the heavy wagon and several places where the wagon has gone through the top layer of asphalt.

On Thirteenth and T streets last Saturday afternoon, the wagon sank so deep in the street that it took four hours of hard work to jack it up.

John Barrett on Way Home From Europe

John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Union, is on his way home from abroad, having sailed on the Franconia, of the Cunard line, from Liverpool yesterday.

Mr. Barrett has been studying English and South American trade relations and visiting in Great Britain. He is reported to have been the guest of Premier Asquith, Lord Aberdeen, who is viceroy of Ireland, and Andrew Carnegie at Skibo Castle.

Labor Union Men Ask Return of Cary

The Central Labor Union has passed a resolution calling upon all voters in the Fourth Wisconsin district to vote, irrespective of party affiliation, for the return to Congress of William Joseph Cary.

Cary, a Congressman from Milwaukee, is a Republican, defeating a Social Democrat by a small margin in the 1910 election, the Democratic candidate running third.

DISTRICT'S COUNSEL FILES APPEAL IN HOTEL GRANDCASE

Corporation Attorney Expects Heavier Penalty for Selling to Minors.

Desirous of an interpretation of the statute governing the sale and dispensation of liquors to minors in the District, whereby Edward J. Gardiner, proprietor of the Hotel Grand, recently convicted of "dispensing" intoxicants to eighteen-year-old Lillian Sears, and fined but $25, can be more severely punished, Corporation Counsel Thomas has filed the papers in the case for an appeal, asking that the ruling and sentence of the lower court be set aside.

Associate Justice Robb, of the District Court of Appeals, will examine the papers and decide whether the evidence and ruling in the case warrants the granting of an appeal to the prosecution. The outcome of the case hinges on the interpretation which Justice Robb will place on the words "sell" and "dispense."

Mr. Justice Robb is at present spending his vacation at Falmouth, Mass. It will probably be several weeks before the jurist will have sufficiently gone into the case to give his opinion as to whether the District is entitled to an appeal. In event he decides against the hotel keeper, argument for an appeal will be made before the full court. It will probably be several months then before the outcome of the case will be known.
